Subject Re: Montrose Superfund Site

Monique -

The Montrose Superfund site is different than the Del Amo Superfund. However, they are near each other. The former Montrose plant property is located on the west side of Normandie Avenue, across the street from Jon Street. Technically, the boundaries of a Superfund site are defined by the full extent of the contamination. In the Montrose case, this means that the Superfund site extends via the groundwater for a mile south, and via the surface water all the way to the Palos Verdes offshore shelf.

As far as Federal Superfund sites are concerned, Del Amo is the closest to your area of interest (Redondo Beach Blvd & Figueroa). Montrose is essentially just as close. The next two nearest sites are Cooper Drum, at 9316 Atlantic Ave, South Gate, CA 90280, and Pemaco Maywood, at 5050 Slauson Blvd, Maywood, CA 90270. I don't know about State Superfund sites (sites that are handled entirely by the State of California EPA). You would need to check the CalEPA databases for other sites. There is a U.S. EPA online mapping tool that may be of use to you for finding other information that involved U.S. EPA (see <http://www.epa.gov/enviro/html/em/index.html>). I know that CalEPA's Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) has an online database (see <http://www.envirostor.dtsc.ca.gov/public/>), and I think the LA Regional Water Quality Control Board (LARWQCB) has one somewhere on their website (see <http://www.waterboards.ca.gov/losangeles/>). Good luck !

Subject Montrose Superfund Site

Dante,

Can you advise me on the location of the Montrose Superfund Site? Are Montrose and Del Amo the same superfund site or are they different? Can you also tell me if you know of any superfund sites near Redondo Beach Boulevard and Figueroa Street in Harbor Gateway? There is a charter school proposed at that location and the hearing officer wanted to determine if there were any of those superfund sites in that vicinity.

Thank you,
